NEW MAGAZINES

HARPER'S MAGAZINE for October contains one hundred and five beautiful illustrations [illegible] very attractive number. The two first [illegible] paper in the number is General McClellan's article on the Regular Army of the United States, advocating its increase and making suggestions for its more efficient organization. The very able and richly illustrated paper on the Campaign of Burgoyne, by W L Stone, is timely in connection with the approaching celebration at Saratoga. Mr Benjamin's article from Brest to Constantinople [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] historical character [illegible] lively description of scenes connected with the Eastern war. William H Riding contributes a very entertaining paper profusely illustrated entitled The Life of a New York Fireman. Horace E Scudder concludes his admirable and suggestive review of New England classical schools. There are two beautifully illustrated poems. An Old Umbrella by C P Cranch and The Home Concert by Mary D Brine. In his vivacious description of [illegible] [illegible] Mr W [illegible] Allen writes [illegible] most [illegible] But the most charming of the illustrated papers is that which opens the number—Mytown [illegible] under which title Rose Terry Cooke describes a characteristic New England town. All [illegible] the title [illegible] and the illustrations [illegible] beautiful as they are true from bona fide sketches. If we except Mr. Abbey's pictures of Ellen Allen and the Distinguished Deacon. Dr J. W. Draper in his [illegible] paper on the Popular Exposition of some Scientific Experiments treats of Burning Glasses and Mirror. Blackmore's Erema approaches its conclusion. Constance F. Woolson contributes [illegible] Raspberry Island. Mr [illegible] short story On a Melon [illegible] [illegible]

The Editorial Departments cover their respective fields as comprehensively and satisfactorily as [illegible] the Drawer for this month being [illegible] [illegible]

ST NICHOLAS for October fully closes up the Fourth volume of the magazine [illegible] with bright stories, lively pictures and [illegible] to the time of year. Henry W Longfellow supplies some strong and beautiful [illegible] the title Haroun Al Raschid, and Donald G. Mitchell (Ik Marvel) contributes the biographies of [illegible] French Story Tellers—Bernardin de St Pierre and Madame Cottin, whose portraits accompany the article—with notable illustrated epitomes of their chief works Paul and Virginia and Elizabeth, or the Exiles of Siberia. The poem Mother by Mary Mapes Dodge blends a rare hopefulness with the tender sadness of its theme and together with the admirable frontispiece forms a striking whole. George MacDonald brings to a close his simple narrative of Scottish life [illegible] Gone Astray the lovely affection [illegible] plots receiving a second charming illustration in the verse immediately following [illegible] beginning [illegible] Thomas Moran has capped the stanza with an appropriate drawing. The little Girl who Grew Smaller by Emily H Leland is a story that will captivate the young folks and Which Had It by Sarah Winter Kellogg with a capital illustration by J. W Champney is a tale that has no end of fun and puzzling uncertainty about it. Lucy Larcom introduces the youngsters to the wonder-world of Autumn Poetry in a way to set them exploring it on their own account. Noah Brooks has a story of Patriotism entitled A Century Ago, and William H Riding presents a graphic account of adventure in the Sierra Nevada under the title Caught by the Snow the paper being illustrated by a picture into which Thomas Moran has put the very chill and rush of the winter storm. A whole year's series of Star papers is concluded in this issue by Professor Proctor, and Mr Trowbridge's serial brings his hero to a mastership of himself, pointing a moral sorely needed by the youth of to-day. Good as is this issue of ST. NICHOLAS, the announcements upon its cover promise for those yet to come a number and variety of attractions altogether unprecedented. Not the least of the good things in view is the new serial story, Under the Lilacs, by Louisa M Alcott, which is to begin in the issue for November.

A paper of unusual interest in SCRIBNER for October, is entitled A Yankee Tar and his Friends, and is written by Mrs M. F Armstrong. It consists of a sketch of the friendship of Capt. E. E. Morgan, of a New York packet, with many of the English artists and litterateurs of the last generation, including Dickens, Thackeray, Turner, Sydney Smith, Doyle, Rogers, Landseer and many others. Another illustrated paper is the discussion of dress, from an artistic stand-point, and, under the title of Togas and Toggery, by Clarence Cook are [illegible] of recent papers in house-furnishing in the same magazine. Nearly forty illustrations are given with this paper, and a dozen more are devoted to Wm. H. Rideing's description of How New York is Fed, the meat, fruit, fish and oyster markets receiving the chief attention. A biographical sketch of Hjalmar Hjorth Boyesen, by F. E. Heath is accompanied by a faithful portrait, from a crayon sketch by Wyatt Eaton, and Woolf, the caricaturist, has a little poem with a drawing of his own. An illustration is given with each of the serials, Mrs. Trollope's His Inheritance, and Dr. Holland's Nicholas Minturn, the latter giving away to Eggleston's new story, Roxy which begins in the November number. Mrs Herrick's paper of popular science is on The Polyzoa, and the cuts are as usual from her drawings on the block. The poetry is chiefly with autumn subjects and is contributed by writers new to Scribner. In the editorial department Dr Holland discusses The Great Strike and Regulated Production and replies to criticisms on a former editorial in Pauperizing the Clergy. The Old Cabinet has a letter from the Country—A Plea for Foreign Missions, a talk about scientific material for poetry, etc. In Home and Society there is something about Wood Fires, Now [illegible] of Berries, Cookery and Cook [illegible]. The book reviews, the record of invention and practical progress [illegible] the humor [illegible] [illegible] complete the number.

THE GALAXY for October is a number of unusual interest and contains several noteworthy articles, among which may be mentioned The Tariff and the Hard Times, by Horace White; Forrest from an Actor's Point of View, by Lawrence Barrett; a chapter on President Lincoln's [illegible] [illegible] giving Mr Lincoln's ideas of colonization and his [illegible] next to conduct [illegible] by Hon Gideon Welles, late Secretary of the Navy; The Planet Mars, by Capt. Raymond of the United States Corps of Engineers who was one of the [illegible] expedition [illegible]; Captain E. Simpson, United States Navy, On Modern Naval Warfare; a striking story by Tourgeneff. The above articles with the departments make a very brilliant number.

LIPPINCOTT'S for October presents a varied list of contents, some of the principal being especially noteworthy. Mr Charles [illegible] Good Bal [illegible] is a fresh and charmingly written essay with the object of showing some of the better characteristics of the Bolognese tribe [illegible] in an [illegible] [illegible] encourage [illegible] everywhere. Another paper in a [illegible] direction is entitled With Contented [illegible] and describes [illegible] [illegible] with the [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] and both [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] large circle of eager pupils. That excellent novelette of the [illegible] German War, A Struggle, is completed and [illegible] [illegible] is given [illegible] of By Cedar Arbor by the author of The Cedar Butterfly, which promises to be one of the most [illegible] novels of the season. There are [illegible] other papers [illegible] [illegible] series Mr Austin [illegible] treats [illegible] method of timing and training [illegible] and mocking bird [illegible] is a paper on the Wise Women of [illegible] [illegible] count of what some famous women have accomplished [illegible] [illegible] passes [illegible] Night [illegible] good and pleasant effect [illegible] number of poems [illegible] brace of humorous ones, a [illegible] under the general title of The Comic Muse. There is a well written essay by Edgar [illegible] on Tourgueneff's Art and with [illegible] of [illegible] Rudolph Lindau [illegible] Perry and Mrs Barr being the authors [illegible]. The Editor's Table is more varied [illegible] light [illegible] [illegible]

HARD TIMES
AND WHAT SHALL WE DO ABOUT IT?
[From the New England Farmer]
People may talk [illegible] hard times [illegible] action [illegible] will be improved but rather grow worse. Dr. Lyman Beecher was right when he sharply rebuked a convention for their grumbling and recrimination [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] their talk and ambitions amounted to nothing at all; the way to do a thing was to do it. I reckon the two little words do it were emphasized in a way that convinced his hearers that to do it meant something. Well, but what shall we do? is the inquiry of the thousands of unemployed laborers and mechanics. This has been the question for the last three or four years, and it is about time for people to make up their minds what they will do. They cannot all remain in the cities and attempt to live on the starvation prices they are getting for work and there is no end of the other.

There was a very good article [illegible] last week's Mirror written by Z. A. Gilbert. Where to Settle, which gives just the information these hard times people need. He claims a fair share of reliability [illegible] we are ready to accredit him and do not think he has overdrawn in his description of that country. It is indeed the very garden of our eastern domain. It is said that the Star of Progress sets Westward. That may be true, but it does not prove that all the improvements go with it and the country left behind is impoverished.

People sometimes run faster than they know. It is better to run than to stand still. The West is a large and splendid country to go to so also is the South in many parts of it and great inducements are offered to people to go there, and our surplus and unemployed people ought to go there and become producers. That's what is needed to bring about good times. One need not be a prophet to predict great prosperity in all departments of business if the resources of the country are developed and utilized. Our market is not confined to our own country, but our products are shipped to all parts of the world. Neither are we confined to any particular line of goods or products, but every article we can produce, from ice to milk, can be shipped to all parts of the world. Look at the meat that is being shipped to Europe, in all conditions—live, fresh and preserved—and go to our markets and see how prices have stiffened, with a prospect of going still higher.

Go West, and help to produce this article, and by so doing, help yourself and the country out of these hard times. Those who cannot go West should go back into the country, on those waste farms. Many of them one can have for cultivating and taking care of them. Go to sheep raising, —no better business for a farmer than sheep husbandry, where they can be protected from dogs. The mad dog excitement has worked some good to the country by the destruction of thousands of worthless curs. We ought to have a more stringent dog law to prevent them from running at large and committing this wholesale slaughter of sheep, which has driven many farmers out of their most profitable business. The Legislature ought to take this matter in hand, and give the farmers protection. If wild beasts should destroy one-fourth the number of sheep that our dogs do, they would very speedily fix a bounty upon their heads, which would soon bring them to grief and their heads to the town treasurer. But the dog must live and run at large, and slay and eat at his pleasure, and the farmer must quit his most profitable business, as a farmer of New Hampshire told me he was obliged to do, and lose an income of $500 yearly. I would like to say much more on this subject, but will only say to the thousands out of a living employment, go to producing, have courage and energy. If you know anything about farming, go at it, get your own living, and not be dependent upon a job here and there, and wait for good times to come, or for something to turn up.

Go down to Aroostook. It is a good country, and near at home—good people there, good church privileges, and schools, and you can get a living there if you are not too lazy—if you are, you are not wanted there.

IS FURTHER ABASEMENT POSSIBLE?

In the name of every sentiment that has been cherished and every principle that has been held sacred by the loyal people of this Union, we ask if there is to be no limit to the humiliation put upon us by the President of the United States in his subserviency to the ex-rebels of the South. In the progress of his journey every vestige of principle has been lost sight of, and in his later speeches the great struggle for National existence and for the establishment of justice is treated as a mere passionate brawl in which the issue was decided solely by the stoutest muscle. With all our loathing of the "policy" and the truckling spirit it has inspired, we are yet amazed that a President elected by Republican votes could so belittle and degrade the great cause for which this land was bathed in the blood of patriot citizens, as has been done by President Hayes to secure the applause of street gatherings in the South. It is with a deep sense of shame for whatever effort we made to secure his election, that we quote the flippant and cringing reference made by the President in a speech at Nashville last Wednesday, to the great triumph of a loyal people over armed treason. Here is the language to which he called the special attention of the reporters:

I said at Louisville, speaking of this subject, one thing that the reporters, who labored under more difficulties than those who are now before me, did not get quite fully. I undertook to explain my views of how it happened that the war between us turned out. It was a matter that was understood pretty well, yet I will give you my view of it. I said then that when the war began our Southern adversaries were a little better prepared for it than we were. We had good marksmen, we had good horsemen, but in proportion to numbers you had a great many more good marksmen and a great many more good horsemen than we had. You were educated as soldiers. We had to learn to ride, to shoot, but gradually you know we got to learn to shoot and how to ride. Then the struggle came between Greek and Greek, and here comes in what my friend, the reporter at Louisville overlooked. Everybody knows that when the issue comes to that Greek against Greek, that army will conquer that has the most Greeks. [Laughter and applause.] Well, we fought it out, and the thing is ended, and now you and I believe that there's no real cause of quarreling in this country left remaining. [Applause.]

There is the view presented by the President of the United States the contest of and the issues between Loyalty and Freedom on the one side and Slavery and Treason on the other. He smilingly tells the Tennessee Confederates that it was only a squabble in which "Greek met Greek" and that the only significance of the result was that the side which mustered the "most Greeks" gained the advantage. That is the whole of it. In no part of the speech is there the slightest recognition of any principle involved, or that the righteousness of a cause could have had anything to do with the result; and that this abandonment of all moral distinction between the cause of the Union and the cause of the Confederacy, is deliberate and methodical, is shown by still more abject expressions in later speeches, some of which have called from the Boston Traveller the following earnest, but solitary Boston protest:

"We ask diffidently in view of the deluge of fraternal gush; Isn't President Hayes rather overdoing the job? "And as I demand respect from the man I found fighting against me for my convictions," he said in his speech on Friday, "I yield the same measures of respect to him who fought for his convictions." That is to say, the man whose 'convictions' were in favor of destroying the Nation, or of burning railroad property, or of killing niggers," or of ravishing hen roosts, is equally respectable with the man who fought for the Nation and against the rascals. We are implacable enough to doubt the wisdom and the necessity of turning ourselves inside out for the purpose of conciliating men who won't conciliate on any terms except the unconditional degrade of loyal men."

But the speech-making was not monopolized by the President, for Wade Hampton was on hand to "indorse" the new "policy" and Secretary Evarts found occasion to glorify his own past recreancy to Republicanism in the eulogy of Andrew Johnson's administration. It is not long since the organs of the "policy" waxed indignant at our suggestion that there could be any likeness between the present regime and the career of that "accidental President" who made war upon the principles of the party that elected him. At Nashville the chief member of the present Cabinet took pains to "indorse" the whole Johnsonian "policy" in the following words:

FELLOW CITIZENS: I shall not attempt by voice to add anything to that which has been said by the President of the purposes or the expectations of the government of the United States, but the methods which the government has adopted will tend to the unity, the peace and the happiness of the people. Governor Hampton, of South Carolina, has said, in the name and in behalf of the people of his State, and as the representative for the moment of the great Southern opinion and feeling that all accept it. Wherever we go we find that the people's opinions all concur in one thing, that the American nation is to be united hereafter, that it is to possess in peace the great land of its inheritance, and that if ever its possessions and its power are to be exerted in war it must be in a just cause and against a foreign foe. Certainly a Union man born in Massachusetts and living in New York ought to feel that in Tennessee a Union man may be at home. Certainly, and Tennessee should think that a union of States is greater than any one State, though that State has given three Presidents to the United States of whom one was your great military President, General Jackson, who stopped the discords and disorders that threatened the peace of the Union, and had determined upon war rather than that the Union should be broken; Tennessee, that furnished so lately a President to the United States, Andrew Johnson, who, when he was obliged to face a stream of party rage and maintain the integrity of the Presidency itself against the frowns of a Congress at variance with him, was maintained by the Constitution in his place, and his memory is now respected throughout the land as one of the most faithful and devoted servants of the country.—(Applause.) What share I had in the defense of that patriotic President I regard as one of the chief opportunities that a lawyer could ever have to help uphold the institutions of his country. Now, for the future, what is there but to enjoy what is common in the past, the remembrance of the revolution and the war of 1812." (Applause.)

Mr. Evarts thus puts the Hayes Administration squarely upon that Johnson platform which was trampled down by the indignant Republican voters of the country. We beg to remind President Johnson's Attorney-General that the doctrines of Andrew Johnson were not and are not the doctrines of the Republican party. Mr. Carl Schurz, an associate in the conciliation Cabinet and one of the travelling circle, might have informed him of the opinion entertained of President Johnson by the National Republican party in 1868. At the National Convention, in Chicago, in May of that year, Carl Schurz was the temporary chairman and in an impassioned speech outlined and foreshadowed the following declarations of the platform on which Ulysses S. Grant was triumphantly elected:

1. We congratulate the country on the assured success of the reconstruction policy of Congress, as evidenced by the adoption, in the majority of States lately in rebellion, of constitutions securing equal, civil and political rights to all; and it is the duty of the government to sustain those institutions, and to prevent the people of such States from being remitted to a state of anarchy.

2. The guarantee by Congress of equal suffrage to all loyal men at the South was demanded by every consideration of public safety, of gratitude and of justice, and must be maintained.

7. The Government of the United States should be administered with the strictest economy; and the corruptions which have been so shamelessly nursed and fostered by Andrew Johnson call loudly for reform.

8. We profoundly deplore the untimely and tragic death of Abraham Lincoln, and regret the accession of Andrew Johnson, who has acted treacherously to the people who elected him, and the cause he was pledged to support, who has usurped high legislative and judicial functions, who has refused to execute the laws; who has used his high office to induce other officers to ignore and violate the laws; who has employed his executive powers to render insecure the property, the peace, the liberty and life of the citizen; who has abused the pardoning power, who has denounced the National Legislature as unconstitutional; who has persistently and corruptly resisted, by every means in his power, every proper attempt at the reconstruction of the States lately in rebellion, who has perverted the public patronage into an engine of wholesale corruption, and who has been justly impeached for high crimes and misdemeanors and properly pronounced guilty thereof by the vote of Thirty-five Senators.

Mr Evarts confused events and politics. Perhaps he was misled by the presence of Wade Hampton with him on the platform. It was the Democratic party that "indorsed" Andrew Johnson in 1868, and it was Wade Hampton who boasted that he procured the insertion of the clause denouncing those very "reconstruction acts" which the Republican party declared "must be maintained." In spite of Andrew Johnson. Here is the platform on which Wade Hampton and William M. Evarts stood when a renegade Executive was striving to put the loyalists of the South under the heels of subjugated treason:

And we do declare * * that we regard THE RECONSTRUCTION ACTS (so-called) of Congress, as such, AS USURPATIONS, AND UNCONSTITUTIONAL, REVOLUTIONARY AND VOID.

That the President of the United States, Andrew Johnson, in exercising the power of his high office in resisting the aggressions of Congress upon the constitutional rights of the States and the people, is entitled to the gratitude of the whole American people, and in behalf of the Democratic party we tender him our thanks for his patriotic efforts in that regard.

On that platform Rutherford B. Hayes was not then willing to stand. Instead of eulogy for the man who was then Mr. Evarts' chief, the man who is now Mr. Evarts' chief made this declaration in Ohio:

"Andrew Johnson, in the days when he was loyal, said the work of reconstruction ought to be placed absolutely in the hands of the loyal men of the State; that rebels ought not to participate in that work; that while that work is going on they must take back seats. We want that understood in our work of reconstruction."

And it is with such a record as this that an administration made up of men of all parties and no party, is going about the country making a jest of political principles, dragging a great national cause down into the mire to please a disloyal rabble and making a by-word and a scoffing of a triumph won at the cost of hundreds of thousands of grief-stricken loyal homes. Well might we borrow words from another speech by Mr. Evarts to declare that "such self-abasement is beyond all cure."

SQUELCHED!

We thought they had squelched him, and the melancholy fizzle of that "Pencil-sketch of Pillsbury," that appeared in Saturday's Commercial shows that we were right. So conspicuous and ridiculous an exhibition of the "white feather" we have never before seen, as Marcellus Emery's retreat before the scalping-knife of Pillsbury. The outcome of all his pronunciamentos of a great showing up of his Kennebec assailant is too weak for even a quotation. To the fierce onslaughts of the Kingfield warrior he replies only with silly twaddle about Pillsbury trying to graft dried apples on potato-vines and to teach kittens to lap milk with their tails, when he was a boy. It is too stupid for average nonsense, and shows plainly that the Central-st. Sachem is terribly scared and wants to slide out of the fight as meekly as possible. Pillsbury will be in high glee at having bearded the Penobscot "Ishmaelite" and frightened him so that he dare not strike back. Eben evidently knew his man.

The Meridian (Miss.) Mercury wants something besides talk. It wants the "fraternity and equality" of the Blue and Gray recognized on the pension rolls, saying:

A kind and just government can only remember its crippled soldiers, whether they wore the blue or gray, and their widows and orphans alike, it's only a malignant government that repels fealty that can discriminate. It is the part of statesmanship to soothe, not irritate, the sores of the late war.

Still the policy organs shut their eyes and ears and go on shouting indorsement of the "statesmanship" that is putting the Confederacy on top of the Union.

Said Wade Hampton at Louisville a few days ago:

A great many of our friends have said that the President has only done his duty; but when we look back to the last twelve or fourteen years we may perhaps see that he is the first President who has done his duty, and as such, while he performs his Constitutional duty, it is our duty to say to him that we will sustain him; that we will sustain his policy whether we be Democrats or Republicans.

"The first President in twelve or fourteen years who has done his duty!" Lincoln and Grant were tyrants, of course. What a pity they did not let rebellion have full sway, and thus gain the applause of the Hamptons and Butlers of South Carolina, as President Hayes has done.

A Louisville despatch to the Cincinnati Commercial referring to the President's visit with Wade Hampton, says:

"I have heard it suggested more than once to-day that Hayes and Hampton would make a Presidential ticket which would sweep the country."

What would the Republicans who crowded our office just after the election, eager for news whether Chamberlain was still "holding the fort," have thought of that suggestion?

The political campaign in Mississippi is carried on upon the shot-gun principle. The Republicans have become so thoroughly intimidated and demoralized that they offer no nominations; but are generally inclined to support the Independent Democratic candidates. Even this is denied them. Their meetings are invaded by armed ruffians who break them up by yells and shouts of violence.—Providence Journal.

BEGINNING TO SEE IT.

[From the Providence (R. I.) Journal.]

We do not demand or desire any humiliating concessions from the Southern people. We agree that they thought that they were right; that they think so still. Educated in the doctrine of the divinity of the institution of slavery, nurtured in the constitutional precepts of Calhoun, they were doubtless honest in the belief that the States had the right to secede on sufficient grounds, of which they were to be the judges, and that the election, by constitutional and legal methods of a President opposed to the perpetuation and extension of slavery, supplied such grounds. Since they entertained that belief, and since they risked their lives in its defence, we cannot doubt the sincerity of their convictions. Nor do we question their right to hold to that belief, after the decision of arms against it. Violence cannot change principles; successful war does not make wrong right. But we have a right to demand that since the question was referred to the dread arbitrament of arms, and since the victory was over those principles, and since the conquered party was admitted into the Union, with all its rights and privileges on the basis of that victory, and with a full acknowledgment of it, that a practical submission should be yielded to the theory of government that prevailed in the war, and that the attempt should not be made to carry it on upon the principles that were overthrown in the war.

When, therefore, Gov. Hampton tells the people of Kentucky that the predecessors of Mr. Hayes for the last twelve or fifteen years have not performed their constitutional duty, when the State of Georgia eliminates from her constitution the clause of loyalty to the National Government and to the indissolubility of the Union, when the State of Texas repeals the clauses of her constitution that provide for the education of the emancipated race, we have a right to complain of bad faith. It is plain that the leaders of the solid South contemplate a Southern policy adverse to the results of the war, which were accepted by the Southern States as a condition of rehabilitation. The St. Louis Republican (Dem.) says:

The four predictions of Mr. Blaine and other discontented Republicans leaders of restoration of the South to ascendancy in our politics are not entirely without foundation. The South is rising to power and political eminence.

The Meridian (Miss.) Mercury says:

When they—the Democrats—get into power, if they will do this wise and just thing, which Morton predicts, to wit: "Pension all or pension none," it will do more to conquer the rebellious feelings of Southern people, which he took pains to portray to the Oregonians, than is in the power of the federal guns he has so much faith in. A kind and just government can only remember its crippled soldiers, whether they wore the blue or the grey, and their widows and orphans alike; it is only a malignant government that repels fealty that can discriminate. It is the part of statesmanship to soothe, not irritate, the sores of the late war.

This demand for pensions for rebel soldiers has been predicted, as a result of Southern ascendancy, through the Democratic party in the Government; but it has not generally been credited in the North. It follows from the adherence of the Southern people to their old ideas, and their refusal to accept the decision of arms, as they refused to accept the decision of the popular voice in the election of Lincoln. Connected with this is the demand for indemnity for losses sustained in the war, including those caused by the emancipation of the slaves. If the doctrine "pension all or pension none," is made to prevail, the doctrine "pay all or pay none," follows. If a rebel soldier is to be placed on a level with a Union soldier, a rebel creditor must be placed on a level with a loyal creditor. But there will be a fierce struggle before the Northern States will yield to such demands; the Democratic party will be strained to its utmost tension before the Northern section of it will face the country with submission to them.

[Don't rely on that broken reed, the Northern Democracy. ED. WHIG.]

THE CHAMPION SNIVELLER.

[From the Chicago Inter-Ocean.]

"I don't know why it is, citizens of Kentucky," said Van Zandt at Louisville, "that as I stand here to-day I am overwhelmed with emotion."

Nor we! We can't imagine, for the life of us, what there was to overwhelm him, unless it was the Galt House whiskey, which is reported to be well calculated to tangle the legs of statesmen of Van Zandt's caliber.

"I do not know why it is," said he again, "that the words on their wing from my lips seem to be bathed in tears."

This mystery is as great as the other, and we do not wonder that Van Zandt wondered. There seems to be a regular season of snivelling and snorting on the part of Northern statesmen, and their noses are as red as the comb of a turkey gobbler, though what the deuce the snuffling is about we cannot imagine. We note, too, that the weeping and mopping seems to be confined exclusively to the Northern participants in the exhibition, the Southerners maintaining a coolness that shows them to possess a little sense, even if they are lacking in gush.

Away down at the end of Van Zandt's speech, however, we find a probable cause for his emotion. He said:

I was baptized a Kentuckian when I was an infant by Harry Clay; and when I grew older and was enabled to read and understand the Constitution and the Declaration of Independence, I was confirmed a Kentuckian by B. H. Bristow of your city.

That's what's the matter with Van Zandt! That's what filled Van Zandt full and started the sap from his eyes. He was "confirmed a Kentuckian by Bristow—B. H. Bristow of your city." Van Zandt was afraid, you see, that the audience might think he meant B. H. Bristow of some other city. Therefore he was particular. This Bristow, it may be remembered, was Secretary of the Treasury for awhile under Grant, and is the man who was wounded at Fort Donaldson "ten feet above his head." No wonder Van Zandt cried when he thought of him. No wonder he slobbered when he associated Bristow in the same sentence with Henry Clay. But never mind all this! Can't somebody choke Van Zandt off? Is it possible that this man is going to make the entire tour South with the Presidential party and blubber at every stop? We hope not! Let Rhode Island dull her Governor home. One dose of him is enough, and we have already had two. He brought ridicule on the Presidential party in the East, and he will do worse if he is allowed to spread himself over the Southern trip. The country don't deserve this infliction. Rhode Island don't deserve it. Can't Van Zandt be enticed away?

The Raleigh (N. C.) Observer, does not appear entirely conciliated but is indignant that any one should hint that the South ever did anything wrong. It shouts:

The Southern people were perfectly law-abiding, peace-loving, and thoroughly anxious to draw the veil of oblivion over past differences, long before Mr. Hayes came into office, and he knows it as well as we do. Are we never to have an end of such disgusting flummery? Are we to submit in silence to this open, unblushing attempt of President Hayes and his Postmaster General to put us before the world in the position of "erring brethren" just come to our senses? North Carolina takes no stock in any such travelling menagerie, and Tennessee, it would seem, is equally disgusted.

The Observer has failed to observe that the "erring brethren" speech was a "joke" and that due apology has been made.

Tennessee is delighted with "the policy." So she was with Andy Johnson's "policy." And so she was with the State right and sacred-soil policy of Jefferson Davis. But this is an era of reconciliation, when every offence is forgiven, except that of radical loyalty.—Boston Traveller.

HARRISON'S PERISTALTIC LOZENGES.

A POSITIVE CURE FOR

Costiveness, Dyspepsia, Piles, Oppression after Eating, Headache, Dizziness,

For thirty years these Lozenges have retained the confidence of the Medical Profession and the public generally, in spite of all competitors or imitators. They are the most effectual remedy for HABITUAL COSTIVENESS and its results, viz: Piles, Indigestion, Headache, Dizziness, Languor, Oppression of Food, Heartburn, Flatulence, Bad Taste in the mouth, Torpid Liver, &c., &c.

Females who cannot endure strong purgatives find these Lozenges admirably suited to the many complaints incident to their sex, by restoring nature and preventing periodical pains and obstructions. They are also just the thing for children suffering with worms, being a sure cure, and as agreeable to take as the most pleasant confection. Travellers find the Lozenges just what they need, as they are so compact and innocuous that they may be carried in the vest pocket, and as an aperient or laxative they are unequalled.

Testimony of a Boston Merchant.

BOSTON, May 10, 1865.

This certifies that I have used Dr. Harrison's PERISTALTIC LOZENGES, and after suffering a long time with the Piles I experienced an entire cure, and recommend their use to all afflicted in the same way, without reserve, or especially if attended with any constipation.

R. H. FORBES.

From the General Ticket Agent of Montreal and Boston Air Line Railroad.

LYNDONVILLE, Vt., March 7th, 1874.

Messrs. E. S. HARRISON & Co. Gents:—The business of the line having increased very much, I am obliged to confine myself very closely to office work, and have in consequence been much troubled with constipation. I find in your Lozenges just what I need, not a strong purgative, but an efficient help to nature.

IMPORTANT IMPROVEMENTS

—IN—

Hot Air Furnaces.

Kohler's Patent Wrought Iron, Double Radiating Hot Air Furnace.

This Furnace was first made in Boston, and so successful has been its operation that over 400 are now in use in Boston and vicinity. Some of the advantages of this Furnace are the large amount of its radiating surface and proximity of the plates to the fire, direct and two distinct hot air chambers, enabling rooms to be heated equally, as well as the fire. There being no place for the leaking of ashes, as they fall directly back to the fire, the water pan, the arrangement in keeping with the Furnace is also a special examination. Any one in want of a furnace heater is invited to call and look at the one, and we shall be pleased to show it, whether we sell or not.

TEMPERANCE MEETING The first of a series of Sunday afternoon temperance meetings was held in Norombega Hall yesterday afternoon. The exercises opened with prayer by Rev Dr. Pond after which the President of the organization addressed the meeting for half an hour, showing the fallacy and evils of the license law. Rev Dr Pond followed on the same subject and he spoke in his customary earnest and forcible manner. Rev Mr Eldridge of Brewer was then introduced and read a carefully prepared address. The last speaker was Rev, Prof Sewall of the Seminary who addressed the audience in his usual pleasing manner. The exercises closed with singing, "Hold the fort," and the benediction by Prof. Sewall. During the afternoon the exercises were interspersed with vocal and instrumental music by Mr F P Dunham at the organ and Miss [illegible] good who sung a fine solo.

TEMPERANCE REFORM City Hall was well filled yesterday afternoon at the stated weekly reform meeting held under the direction of the Reform Club. For three years and more no Sabbath has passed without the above named organization presenting to the people a meeting in the interest of total abstinence and the improvement of morals among those who have, more or less, been addicted to the vices which intemperance fastens upon its victims, and in those three years many excellent speakers have addressed our citizens from the platform of these reformers, but on yesterday those who were present enjoyed one of the most logical and earnest efforts from the Rev. T Gerrish, of Pittsfield, that has been their good fortune to listen to for many a day. His words from the commencement to the close seemed to thrill and to charm, and their import will tarry long in the minds of his auditors. The President of the club presided and Rev. H W. Bolton invoked the Divine blessing upon the work and the workers. The meeting was also addressed by Mrs Pickard of the Crusade, Vice-President Seavey, B E Walker, and Mrs Crossman, President of the Grange. So large an audience assembled yesterday, and such encouraging reports as were presented, dispels the [illegible].

THE HERSEY EXCURSION Saturday morning about three hundred and fifty persons went on the Universalist Hersey excursion to Dexter. They went on a [special] train which arrived at that place at [half] past nine o'clock. The excursionists were met at the train by the members of the Universalist Society at Dexter who had teams at the station to convey all who wished to ride to the vestry of the church, which is about a mile from the station. On arrival at the vestry dinner was prepared by the ladies of the Dexter Society who furnished tea, coffee, milk, etc. After dinner the teams were again placed at the disposal of the Bangor people [and] the afternoon was very pleasantly passed in driving about and looking at the various objects of interest. The proprietor of the [illegible] Mill kindly opened [the] doors and gave all permission to enter the mill and witness the working of the machinery. Masonic Hall and Odd Fellows Hall were visited and the seats were removed from the Town Hall and quite a number of the excursionists enjoyed a social dance for about an hour. Rev Mr Battles for many years pastor of the Society and now pastor of the Dexter Society went with the excursionists from this city and with the members of his Parish did everything in their power to add to the pleasure of their visitors. On their return they left Dexter at half past five and arrived in this city about half past [illegible] o'clock all having greatly enjoyed the [trip].

SCHENCK'S PULMONIC SYRUP, FOR THE CURE OF CONSUMPTION, COUGHS AND COLDS

The great virtue of this medicine is that it ripens the matter and throws it out of the system, purifies the blood, and thus effects a cure.

SCHENCK'S SEA WEED TONIC, FOR THE CURE OF DYSPEPSIA, INDIGESTION, &c.

The Tonic produces a healthy action of the stomach, creating an appetite, forming chyle, and curing the most obstinate cases of Indigestion.

SCHENCK'S MANDRAKE PILLS, FOR THE CURE OF LIVER COMPLAINT, &c

These pills are alterative, and produce a healthy action of the liver without the least danger, as they are free from calomel and yet more efficacious in restoring a healthy action of the liver.

These remedies are a certain cure for Consumption as the pulmonic Syrup ripens the matter and purifies the blood. The Mandrake Pills act upon the liver, create a healthy bile, and remove all diseases of the liver, often a cause of Consumption. The Sea Weed Tonic gives tone and strength to the stomach, makes a good digestion, and enables the organs to form good blood, and thus creates a healthy circulation of healthy blood. The combined action of these medicines as thus explained will cure every case of Consumption, if taken in time, and the use of the medicines persevered in.

To the Honorable Judge of Probate for the County of Penobscot:

The undersigned administrator of the estate of Eli Winslow late of Dexter in said County deceased, respectfully represents that the goods and chattels rights and credits of said deceased are not sufficient to pay his just debts and charges of administration by the sum of two hundred dollars or more.

Wherefore your petitioner prays your Honor to grant him a license to sell at public or private sale and convey all of a certain house and lot situate on the southerly side of the road leading through the estate of the late John Whitney in said Dexter, inasmuch as the residue would be greatly depreciated by a sale of any portion thereof of the real estate of the deceased to satisfy said debts expenses of sale and charges of administration. Said real estate is the same described in a deed recorded in the Registry of Deeds of said County.

ST. NICHOLAS.

[illegible]

ST NICHOLAS for 1877

Which opens with November 1876 begins A short and very entertaining Serial from the French [illegible] HIS OWN MASTER, by J T Trowbridge, author of the Jack Hazard Stories [illegible] THE BOYS OF MY BOYHOOD by William Cullen Bryant. The Horse Hotel [illegible] by Charles A Barnard [illegible] The Clock in the Sky by Richard A Proctor [illegible] DON'T GIVE UP ST NICHOLAS [illegible]

During the year there will be interesting papers for boys by William Cullen Bryant, John G Whittier, Thomas Hughes, William Howitt, Dr Holland, George MacDonald, Sanford B Hunt, Frank R Stockton and others.

There will be stories, sketches, and poems of special interest to girls, by Harriet Prescott Spofford, Susan Coolidge, Sarah Winter Kellogg, Eliza Scudder, Elizabeth Stuart Phelps, Louisa Alcott, Lucretia P Hale, Celia Thaxter, Mary Mapes Dodge and many others. There will be also

"TWELVE SKY PICTURES" by Professor Proctor, the Astronomer, with maps showing "The Stars of Each Month" which will be likely to surpass in interest any series on popular science recently given to the public.

AMUSEMENT AND INSTRUCTION with FUN AND FROLIC and WIT AND WISDOM will be mingled as heretofore and ST. NICHOLAS will continue to delight the young and give pleasure to the old.

THE LONDON LITERARY WORLD says

There is no magazine for the young that can be said to equal this choice production of Scribner's press. All the articles, whether in prose or rhyme, are throbbing with vitality [illegible] The literature and artistic illustrations are both superb.

The London Daily News says "We wish we could point out its equal in our own periodical literature."

GOOD NEWS FOR BOYS AND GIRLS

To meet the demand for a cheaper ST NICHOLAS Gift Book the price of vols. I and II has been reduced to $3 each. The three volumes, in an elegant library case, are sold for $10 (in full gilt $[illegible]) so that all may give their children a complete set. These volumes contain more attractive material than fifty dollars worth of the ordinary children's books.

Subscription price, $3 a year. The three bound volumes and a subscription for this year only $12. Subscribe with the nearest newsdealer or send money in check, or P O money order, or in registered letter, to [Read at the Dedication of the Soldiers' Monument, Dover, N. H., Sept. 14, 1877.]

THE SOLDIERS' MONUMENT.

BY REV. LUCIUS H. COAN.

We were boys when the first gun thundered,
And we walked in fear, and wondered,
With a vague sense of evil to come,
For we knew not the meaning of battle,
We knew not the musketry's rattle,
Nor the roll of wakening drum.

But signs of strife gathered round us;
By our books and our farms they found us;
As the sick and the wounded came back,
Bringing fire to young hearts of tinder,
What power on earth could hinder
A flame springing swift from their track?

Like a dream the old scenes rise before us,
In the blue the old banner floats o'er us,
Or the blue like a sea rises o'er us,
They are gone, leaving fathers and mothers,
Leaving sisters, and wives, and—others,
At the call of bugle and drum.

Through the shadow and shine of autumn sun,
The war cloud gathered its blackness dun,
And short, ruddy colors came from,
Bringing tales of the dead and the dying,
Who, with heroes of history vieing,
Went down in the battle's brunt.

But what pen can picture the gloom of those years,
A nation's agony, blood and tears,
What graves from shore to shore?
The sad voice of fate from Executive halls
Trembles with sorrow, but bravely calls
For three hundred thousand more!

And never in vain that sad voice calls,
Never in vain its summons falls
From graves with fresh sod covered over,
He sees, through eyes that are dim with tears,
The need at the end of three red years,
Of three hundred thousand more!

Oh! hang out your banners in peace to-day,
Nor blush to declare, our fear to say.
The cause was worthy, for which they died,
They were Liberty's sons,—and for their fair
May well float in the blue of our national air,
To emblem a nation's pride.

And may cover their graves with marble and stone,
And blazon their names from zone to zone,—
I must true to the Truth for which they bled,
They will live with the years each children's name,
And shine at the marble tile of fame,
And rejoice it at they sleep with the dead

Their Avenger means justice to one and to all,
If justice fell, its folks may fall,
And we for it stand no liar
Proclaiming it, will it, and sung it high,
I must either return, it it become a lie,—
Its children always shall not here.

Far purer than marble, more lasting than stone,
Shall the statement where their sacrifice memorize,
Its simple they proudly rearest
When I rise from the far Pacific shore,
To the wild Atlantic's ceaseless roar,
Their lying vision is cleared

Build that, from the lakes to southern sea,
And make it indeed the home of the free,
And then they shall rest in peace,
And settle which marble and granite rise
To pierce the over-arching skies,
And chisel of music release.

You may garnish their graves and thunder with guns,
But if you forget their daughters or sons
Who suffer as paupers to-day,
Or, if only your shame, for you will them all,
Who will care for your children, if you will?
Believing, they went their way.

But being your promise, they smiled on all toil,
With the soldier's simple faith and pride
In the honor of the noble free,
Their children might safely stand beside
Their graves, and the spot wanton the mind,
Unchained by chivalry.

And now, if it our dreams and faith are true,
This gift may, jittingly come from you,
A token of concord is well
And a failure to the faith for which they bled,
Or false to their emprise who stand by your side,
This granite a lie will tell.

We can not, will not accept this fear,
For as firm as this noble shaft towering here,
Our love of justice stands
While loyal principle the air shall ring,
As this granite gift to the dead we bring
With Liberty's joy at her lips

GIVE THE BOYS A SHOW.

We do not believe, says the New England Homestead, in throwing off all the heavy work and all the farm operation requiring skill and judgment for their successful performance, upon the boys or the young men, but it is possibly so in the other direction, and we are convinced that many farmers are making a great mistake in not giving their boys more of this kind of work. In most cases this is, doubtless, from a good motive. They do not want to overwork the boys or put them in too responsible position.

But by bearing all burthens themselves they are robbing the boys for successful farm work in the future. In a little while, many of these boys will be men and will manage farms of their own. If they are now taught to depend upon their fathers for the performance of all difficult parts of the work, what will they do when they become men and are at work for themselves? Youth is the time for education, and the father whose son intends to be a farmer owes it to that son to give him thorough instruction in all branches of farm work. The boy must not be a dependent, but must be trained to habits of self-reliance. He must be taught when he arrives at a proper age, to keep his own and the hired order, to drive team, hold the plough and cultivator, run the mowing machine, to take care of tools, and, in short, to do each and every kind of farm work in a workmanlike manner. This not being so the farmer wishes to give the boy too large a share of the work, but because it is for the best interest of the boy that he should receive this practical instruction.

SHIPPING CHEESE TO ENGLAND.—First is the freight to New York, which is easily ascertained. Then there is cartage of five cents per 100 pounds; press, cooperage and clearance amounting to a trifle over three cents per box. The freight will be about 35 cents per 100 pounds. Next come the handing charges, entry, tow and dock dues, cartage, cooperage, portage, insurance, opening and showing, interest on charges paid, brokerage, commission, guarantee, loss in weight, and often other charges not here enumerated, as commission men are sure to make the full list of charges, whether right or wrong. For instance, you will have to pay "cooperage" in New York, and also in Liverpool, whether the cheese required it or not. Then you will have to stand about 5 per cent "loss in weight," even if the cheese actually overrun in weight, and although the nominal commission is only 5 per cent. for selling cheese in Liverpool, when you get the net proceeds you will find that it is not 5 per cent you pay for sales, but more than double that to get your cash returns. When cheese sells there at 10 cents, you cannot be sure of receiving over 22 cents per pound, after all your expenses from your farm till sold and deducted. The commission men of Liverpool are as honest as in any other city; but they all make every charge custom allows, and shippers must silently submit to paying them.—Ohio Observer.

LETTER CARRIERS.

All letters are delivered free by carriers when addressed to street and number. People should inform their correspondents of above and have their letters addressed accordingly.

Persons leaving their address at the Gents Jbx. Drop can also have their letters sent, but it is much more convenient to have the street and number on, and they will be delivered earlier than if the office is put on at the office. Carriers make two deliveries daily, the first trip supplying the extremes of their routes.

Carriers are made morning and evening in search for important mails—the down town boxes fifteen and the up town boxes thirty minutes before closing mails at the office.

The Delivery Clerk's Window will be open for the delivery of letters from 7 to 8 A. M., and from 6 to 8 P. M. Sundays from 8 to 9 A. M.

Any irregularities in the Carrier department should be reported to the office.

ENVELOPES.

No additional charge will be made for printing the name and request to return, across the left hand upper corner of the envelopes furnished by the Post Office Department, (samples of which may be seen at the Cashier's window,) when ordered in lots of not less than 500.

A request for the return of a letter to the writer, if unclaimed within thirty days, or less, written or printed, with the writer's name, post office and [illegible] across the left end of the envelope, on the face side, will be complied with.

The public are earnestly recommended to procure stamped envelopes with the printed return request, as the expense is less, and letters thus endorsed, if not delivered to the person addressed, are returned to the writer free of charge.

Fifty clean envelopes of above furnished at $2.50 per thousand.

Stamps cut from Stamped Envelopes cannot be used to prepay postage. The use of such stamps is punishable by a fine of fifty dollars.

Stamped Envelopes, printed in directing, are recommended at this office

DOMESTIC POSTAGE.

The sender of a package of third class matter may write [illegible] his name on the wrapper with the word "from," but nothing more, without subjecting the whole to letter postage.

ADVERTISED LETTERS.

All letters remaining in the office are advertised on Monday of each week. If not claimed in one month thereafter, they are then forwarded to the Dead Letter office.

MONEY ORDERS.

Especial attention is called to the Money Order system, as a safe and cheap method of transmitting small sums through the mails. Orders are issued in sums of not more than fifty dollars. Larger sums can be transmitted to the same person, at the same time, by additional orders.

RATES.

On orders not exceeding $15,	10 cents.
over $15 and not exceeding $30,	15 cents.
over $30 and not exceeding $40,	20 cents.
over $40 and not exceeding $50,	25 cents.

Money Orders can also be obtained on England, Ireland, Scotland, Wales, Switzerland and Germany States.

Never put Money in a Letter—Always Procure a Money Order.

If money is to be remitted, a Postal Money Order should be procured. If upon points where there is no Money Order Office, then the letter should be Registered. Money should never be enclosed in an ordinary letter.

Office Hours—From A. M. to 6 P. M.

REGISTRY DEPARTMENT.

All valuable letters should be Registered, unless a Money Order is obtained. Under the present system of Registration, letters are transmitted with perfect safety.

Letters may be Registered by paying postage in full, and a Registration fee in stamps, for—
United States, 10 cents.
Great Britain and Ireland, and all Countries having a postal treaty with the United States, 10 cents.

Office Hours—From 8 A. M. to 6 P. M.
